Announcing the Inaugural
Workshop of the Rutgers Global Nursing Research Collaborative

Workshop: Sunday, September 20, 2015 - Tuesday, September 22, 2015
Preconference: Saturday, September 19, 2015
Location: Rutgers Inn and Conference Center
New Brunswick, New Jersey, USA

The mission of the Rutgers Global Nursing Research Collaborative is to establish a milieu where nurse scientists and graduate students in the global nursing community can work together to provide solutions to problems faced by the communities represented in the collaborative.

The workshop will provide a first venue for the initial work necessary to establish the Collaborative. Activities will include skills-building sessions and time for participants to work in research teams to develop collaborative projects. The expected outcome is that several collaborative projects/proposals/plans will be presented at the final session.

Preconference: Building Blocks of Global Nursing Research: The preconference is aimed towards those who feel they could benefit from a more basic overview of research skills presented by faculty from Rutgers School of Nursing
