1. Policy Statement

The University and the School of Nursing recognize that it is the faculty member’s prerogative to determine student grades. Faculty are expected to set fair and consistent grading policies in their courses. The responsibility for resolving grade disputes is shared among the faculty member, the student, the program, and the School.

2. Reasons for Policy

To outline the grade grievance process.

3. Who Should Review This Policy

All School of Nursing faculty and students.

4. Resources and Related Documents:

- Rutgers University Policy Prohibiting Discrimination and Harassment 60.1.12
- Rutgers University Policy Grades and Symbols 10.2.2

5. The Policy

Students have the right to know the components of their final grade, which is included in each course syllabus. If a student perceives that their final course grade was based on anything other than academic performance, an appeal may be filed. Rutgers University's policy pertaining to discrimination and harassment may be found: Policy Prohibiting Discrimination and Harassment

- While students have the right to file an appeal, dissatisfaction with a grade or failure to notify the faculty of personal circumstances that may have affected academic performance are not grounds for a grade appeal.
- Mathematical errors do not require a grade appeal but should be brought to the attention of the faculty.

The Process

1. Reconcile with faculty. The student shall attempt to reconcile the conflict or question by direct interaction (e.g., email, phone, or face-to-face conversation) with the involved faculty member(s) upon receipt of the grade, but no later than three (3) academic days (days on which the university is open for business) after the official posting of the grade in Banner or REGIS.
 - If the faculty member is not available, the student will contact the course leader/specialty director, who will attempt to contact the faculty. Should the faculty or specialty director be unavailable to meet with the student, the student will be referred to the appropriate Associate Dean who will intercede on the student's behalf to contact the faculty.
2. Meet with the Senior Vice Dean – Administration and Student Affairs. Following unsuccessful resolution with the faculty member, the student has three (3) academic days to meet with the Senior Vice Dean or their designee to discuss the nature of the appeal and for the initiation of the formal grade appeal process if necessary. The student will be guided through the process and submit all required material, including the grade appeal form and all documentation to the Office of Student Affairs within five (5) academic days. Documentation should include, but is not limited to:
 - Course syllabus,
 - Any course material related to the appeal,
 - Email correspondence between the student and the faculty member, and
 - A student written statement explaining why they feels the appeal meets the criteria for a grievance.

The student will receive confirmation from the Office of Student Affairs that the material was received. The Senior Vice Dean – Administration and Student Affairs will review the documents for completeness and send all documents to the Chair of the Grievance Committee.

3. Review of merit of grievance by the Subcommittee of the Grievance Committee. The Chair of the Grievance Committee will determine the level of the student (undergraduate or graduate) and convene a subcommittee. This subcommittee will consist of 3 faculty members from the Grievance Committee who do not teach in the program the student is enrolled in.
 - Members of the subcommittee will review the appeal material and determine, within three (3) academic days, whether (1) the appeal has no merit (i.e. does not meet the criteria of a grievance) or (2) a full hearing is necessary. The subcommittee may request additional information from the faculty member or the student if that information is needed to make a decision. If the appeal has no merit, the Chair will notify the student and faculty member, in writing, of the decision, and provide the rationale. This will be done through the Office of Student Affairs.
4. Appeal Process. The student may reject the subcommittee's decision and continue the appeal process. If a full hearing is necessary, it will be scheduled as soon as possible, but no later than five (5) academic days following the decision.
5. Review of appeal by Full Hearing Process. The Chair and the subcommittee will meet with the student and faculty for the purpose of gaining additional information that will help them determine whether the appeal meets the criteria of a grievance.
 - The student may have a support person present, but that person will not participate or speak on behalf of the student during the hearing.
 - Merits of the appeal evidence (both evidence submitted previously, and evidence gained during the hearing) will be discussed immediately following the meeting with the student and faculty and the subcommittee will make a decision. The decision will be either (1) the appeal is justified (meets criteria for a grievance), or (2) the appeal is not justified.
 - If it is determined that the appeal is not justified, the Chair will notify the student and faculty in writing within two (2) days through the Office of Student Affairs. This letter will be sent by email.

- If the appeal is justified, the subcommittee will recommend the appropriate student/faculty measures to be taken.
6. Appealing the decision of the Full Hearing, escalating to an Associate Dean. The student or the faculty may reject the decision of the Full Hearing and continue the appeal process by notification in writing to the Office of Student Affairs. All materials and decisions submitted previously will be sent to the appropriate Associate Dean by the Office of Student Affairs. The Associate Dean will review all material and may also request additional material or request to see the student and/or faculty member for the purpose of gaining additional information that will help them render a decision.
- The Associate Dean may either (1) uphold the decision of the Full Hearing, or (2) disagree with the Full Hearing's decision. If the decision is upheld, the student, faculty, and Chair of the Grievance Committee will be notified in writing. If the Associate Dean disagrees with the decision, the Chair of the Grievance Committee must be notified and provided with the reasons the decision was not upheld. If necessary, recommendations for actions will be made by the Associate Dean and the Chair of the Grievance Committee.

After the Grievance Decision

In the case of a successful grievance, the grade does not automatically change; rather, the committee makes recommendations on the appropriate student/faculty measures to be taken.

Progression. If the final grade is a failing grade, and that course is a prerequisite for the following courses, the student may not progress to the next courses. Students who are scheduled to start a course before the grievance process is completed may request special permission from the appropriate Associate Dean to continue coursework until the appeal is resolved. The student will be advised that if the grade is upheld on appeal, they will be required to withdraw from the class.
